Land use zoning map based on the orthorectified satellite image. Basically the zoning was based on subjective analysis of present land use, land capability and socio-economic setting of the study area. Land capability map was produced based on the soil analysis, land system and present land use. Soil information for land capability was collected from the soil samples which were chemically analyzed in the soil laboratory. Location for the soil and for sample collection was identified by following the grid cell which were defined by delineating the land system over the high resolution satellite imagery data. Present land use was also considered while defining the boundary of land zoning. Extensive field study was carried prior to preparing to draw better understanding of the social setting of the study area. The minimum mapping unit adopted is 0.25 hectare.
